

FOSTERING INTERPROFESSIONAL AWARENESS AND COLLABORATION AMONG INTEGRATIVE HEALTH AND MEDICINE ORGANIZATIONS

Several interprofessional Integrative Health and Medicine (IHM) organizations have emerged over the past few decades, all with a shared vision for advancing health and well-being. Here we present an overview of these organizations with the intent of cultivating awareness of their distinct mission and goals, and enhancing visibility among health care users, policy makers, educators, practitioners, and the general public. This collaborative resource is intended to be a launching point for building bridges towards enhanced coordination and partnerships.

Academic Collaborative for Integrative Health (ACIH)

Core membership are academic organizations associated with the five licensed IHM professions (acupuncture and East Asian medicine, chiropractic, direct entry midwifery, massage therapy, and naturopathic medicine). Other membership categories: Traditional World Medicines/Emerging Professions organizations; Individual colleges affiliated with ACIH disciplines; Individuals and Organizations aligned with ACIH values.
